

Today, DH accounts for about 13% of the heating and cooling in Europe. According to you, which role will district heating and cooling networks play in the future energy system, especially in cities?

53 responses

- Will increase
- Will remain the same
- Will shrink

